since the 1980s the study of material culture has become a central focus in cultural anthropology this book explores the philosophical roots and reviews recent studies of this anthropological discourse based on his own experience of working intensively with museum collections throughout the world pieter ter keurs proposes a new approach towards material objects it is now generally acknowledged that material objects are dynamic entities in culture in this study the author suggests that this flexible approach towards form and meaning is however not useful without fully recognizing the materiality of the object he argues that the inherent static nature of matter is crucial in shaping cultural realities objects are best seen as items in which reality is materialized or condensed apart from condensation he looks at the opposite process of evaporation namely of extracting meanings from their material bases when viewed in different contexts the concrete ethnographic examples illustrating this model come from papua new guinea the siassi islands and indonesia enggano island on the siassi islands extensively decorated wooden bowls play a major role in local ritual life and in the trade with neighbouring people the designs on the bowls can be interpreted as being part of the mariam complex a system of mythical beings that was of crucial importance in pre christian siassi the mariam beings no longer appear during rituals but their presence is secured condensed in the carvings the siassi people still make on enggano island the main designs used in the woodcarvings represent images of slain enemies in former ritual life the carvings were meant to secure the welfare of society and to stimulate fertility of the people and the soil nowadays the people of enggano no longer remember much of their old culture in jakarta their woodcarvings have acquired a new meaning in the sense that they are found for sale as tourist items representing indigenous primitive objects the author introduces the concept evaporation to indicate that although the materiality of the objects is similar they look the same their meanings have completely changed
